

Continuing Education Workshops

115th APA Annual Convention
San Francisco, California, August 17-20, 2007

AMERICAN PSYCHOLOGICAL ASSOCIATION
EDUCATION DIRECTORATE

NEW!

Teaching the Psychology of Men (Workshop #127)

Saturday, August 18, 2007

Workshop Description

The purpose of this INTRODUCTORY workshop is to assist psychologists in developing coursework on the psychology of men using the theoretical and empirical literature on men and masculinity. Participants will learn the basics of how to create a psychology of men course and/or how to infuse this content into an existing course of gender or the psychology of women. Workshop participants will discuss pedagogical processes such as traditional lecturing, psychoeducational techniques, group discussion approaches, use of video media, student-assessment techniques, classroom management techniques, and infusing diversity and multiculturalism as critical content.

This workshop is designed to help you:

1. Develop a psychology of men course or incorporate the psychology of men into existing courses;
2. Locate syllabi, core concepts, readings, media, self assessments, and other resources to teach the psychology of men;
3. Utilize multiple teaching methods when teaching the psychology of men, including psychoeducational and multicultural approaches; and
4. Enumerate and develop techniques and solutions to handle some critical problems and dilemmas when teaching the psychology of men.

Faculty: James M. O'Neil, PhD, University of Connecticut, Storrs, CT; Christopher Kilmartin, PhD, University of Mary Washington, Fredericksburg, VA; Michael E. Addis, PhD, Clark University, Worcester, MA; Abigail Mansfield, MA, Clark University, Worcester, MA

Enrollment Limit: 30

CE Credits: 4

Time: 8:00–11:50 a.m.

Location: Hilton San Francisco Hotel – 333 O'Farrell Street

Fee	Advance	Onsite
Member	$120	$140
Nonmember	$140	$180

ENROLL NOW at www.apa.org/ce or call the CEP Office at 800-374-2721, ext. 5991.

Advance Enrollment ends July 6, 2007.

This workshop has been reviewed and approved by the APA Continuing Education Committee (CEC). The APA CEC maintains responsibility for the content of the program. Full attendance at the workshop is required to receive CE credit. No partial credit is awarded; late arrival or early departure will preclude awarding of CE credits.

