13. What is your impression of the list serve? How can we make it more useful?

#	Response
1	Love it. Especially appreciate Dr. Wedding's frequent and cogent postings.
2	Not sure; it's somewhat insular.
3	a little dull
4	excellent more discussion of salient issues more comments about JCPMS articles
5	I like it as it provides an opportunity for some good discussion topics for members.
6	not much happening there;
7	I benefit from it and don't have specific suggestions.
8	Excellent for communication, but not too overloaded.
9	I'm probably going to drop out of all the list serves I subscribe to, including AMSP. Between the huge volume of list serve traffic and the mountains of spam I receive, list serves have become almost completely useless. PLEASE switch to some sort of web-based technology so we don't have to sift through zillions of emails to pick out the one or two interesting messages that might be buried somewhere in the middle.
10	Quite good
11	list serve is good already; only improvement is to make this a larger, more meaningful association; time to broaden past the "medical school" affiliation and include medical settings
12	I thought listserv was spelled listserv
13	The listserv is excellent. The traffic has been very enlightening over the years.
14	Ok as is.
15	Seems informative but broader than interests of clinical psychology
16	I wish there were more discussion topics rather than just announcements
17	Excellent
18	Share clinical and research resources on serve (i.e., colleagues, am looking for a couple of references on ... please help)
19	The list serve is not that helpful.
20	Not really able to say at this time.
21	It's OK -- but quite a few postings are not particularly relevant for me.
22	useful info especially for regional and national issues
23	I do not have one.
24	ok
25	Often interesting. Set it up so individual correspondence goes only through backchannel
26	not on list serve, so cannot make any suggestions
27	NA
28	Ok as far as list serves go.

- 29 I enjoy receiving the opinions of the membership. Sometimes the thread gets to be too long with replies.
- 30 I think people must backchannel a lot of responses, which means the rest of us miss out on discussions sometimes.
- 31 It's helpful that I have not been inundated with mail so that I am more likely to look at the items I do receive.
- 32 no suggestions
- 33 Its OK
- 34 It's very helpful. Usually appreciate the information on the list serve.
- 35 good list serve
- 36 na
- 37 it's helpful
- 38 It is useful I think we need to make sure to have email access for all members for periodic mailings
- 39 I find the reports from AAMC and interesting but less relevant than forum for specific discussion/consultation opportunities for members. YOU MUST FIND A WAY TO HAVE A MESSAGE SENT THROUGH THE LISTSERV BUT WITH THE RETURN ADDRESS TO THE INDIVIDUAL WHO IS SENDING IT. I have become very weary of receiving members personal responses to each other (most of whom seem to be in an "in" group of core members) Also under the current system it makes it difficult if not impossible to respond directly to an individual posting- some members don't even have their personal contact information at the end of their note. There must be a way to "reply" to the sender and "reply all" if one wishes to respond to the entire listserv. Unless this is addressed I am thinking of getting off the list.
- 40 Many times very informative.
- 41 very helpful
