TRAINING DIRECTOR: Mark K. Phillips, Psy.D.

1) Training in behavioral emergencies

(upcoming) Required of all interns – We will likely require all interns to rotate through our new ER triage service, once it is up and running

(current) Required for interns in particular training sites or on particular rotations – Currently, interns receive training/supervision for behavioral emergencies while working in outpatient clinic rotations

2) Site of training

(a) Walk-in clinic – (outpatient community mental health center)

(b) Emergency room – (we are in the process of setting up an ER Triage experience for interns that will be available, hopefully, by the beginning of our 2002-2003 training year)

3) Time devoted to training in behavioral emergencies

Interns have formalized training in non-violent crisis intervention for acting-out patients (8-hours training), and then receive individualized supervision/training on a case-by-case basis. Additionally, we attempt to train interns in rapid assessment of suicidality and dangerousness during their work in both inpatient and outpatient rotations.

4) Formal didactic training in evaluation and management

- 8-hour Non-violent crisis intervention

- Various didactics and orientation didactics focus on the assessment/interviewing process with patients in acute suicidal or homicidal states. Interns are also guided in the appropriate manner to document their assessment and make appropriate referrals

- Individual (case-by-case) supervision

5) Supervision specifically for emergency/crisis work

The supervision aspect of training occurs during case-by-case consultation (as needed), individual supervision (1 hour weekly), and occasionally during group supervision (2 hours weekly) when issues pertinent to all interns arise.

• When we begin the ER Triage service, we plan to conduct formalized didactic training prior to this experience to familiarize interns with forms and to assure proficiency in interviewing

2) Site of training

(a) Walk-in clinic

(b) Crisis stabilization unit (inpatient acute psychiatric unit)

3) Time devoted to training in behavioral emergencies

With regard to walk-in clinic, the intern sees any veteran presenting to the walk-in, which necessarily includes a range of presenting issues, some of which pertain directly to behavioral emergencies.

With regard to the inpatient acute unit, each intern does a 4-month assessment rotation and the inpatient unit is a component of that rotation. Interns do approximately 10-12 evaluations on inpatient units, and the majority of such referrals are related to behavioral emergency (usually risk of harm to self) issues.

The walk-in clinic is another portion of the assessment rotation, and interns spend one day per week over the 4 months, resulting in approximately 30 such evaluations).

- 4) Formal didactic training in evaluation and management
In the past, four seminars – 2 on risk of harm to self, 2 on risk of harm to others
- 5) Supervision specifically for emergency/crisis work
The inpatient work is supervised by a psychologist. The walk-in work is supervised by a psychiatrist.

3) Time devoted to training in behavioral emergencies

On each rotation, an intern is likely to spend 1-2 hours per week responding to emergencies. Examples of typical emergencies are suicidal ideation and attempt, self-injury, thoughts of harming others, or staff crises (such as assault on staff).

4) Formal didactic training in evaluation and management

Each year, we discuss (at length) management of suicidal inmates. This is typically a 4-hour presentation. We also discuss hostage situations (1-2 hours) and prison riots (1-2 hours). Approximately 2 hours are spent on self-injury related to Borderline Personality Disorder.

5) Supervision specifically for emergency/crisis work

Supervision is case-specific at the time of the event. These incidents are then discussed again in group supervision.
