

The department of psychology at Austin Peay State University seeks to fill a tenure-track faculty position at the rank of assistant professor in the area of Military Psychology beginning July 2005. Specific academic preparation in one of the following areas is required – experimental psychology (e.g. cognitive, sensory/ human factors), social psychology, industrial/organizational psychology, educational psychology (e.g., applied behavior analysis/behavior modification), or clinical/counseling psychology. Ph.D. preferred. ABD considered. Regardless of specific preparation, the successful applicant must demonstrate a commitment to teaching and research regarding the application of psychology in a military context. Creating and teaching one or two courses in the area of military psychology (e.g., introduction to military psychology) would be expected. The successful applicant would also be expected to teach general psychology. Other possibilities include teaching statistics, research methods, or other courses offered by the department appropriate to the candidate's academic preparation.

Austin Peay State University is located within 10 miles of the Ft. Campbell army base. The base represents an untapped source of research opportunities. In addition, the University enrolls approximately 2,000 students at the Ft. Campbell Center Educational Center. The successful applicant would teach classes on post where office space would be provided. Occasional teaching opportunities on the main campus may also be available. The University has recently received positive signs regarding grant funding to start an interdisciplinary Center for the Study of Domestic and Global Security. The successful applicant would have the chance to be involved in the creation of this Center.
