

SOCIETY FOR CHILD AND FAMILY POLICY AND PRACTICE

Division 37 of the American Psychological Association

Dear Division 37 members,

We are excited about several benefits now available to our members, offered through the Career Development Interest Group (CDIG) of the University-Based Child and Family Policy Consortium (CFPC). All Division 37 members are invited to partake in activities sponsored by the CDIG Careers Interest Group at no additional cost. A few of the benefits include access to participation in Career Interest Group monthly conference calls, opportunities for networking, and eligibility for Career Interest Group internships. A letter further describing benefits associated with the Career Interest Group was recently posted to the Division 37 listserves. You can also find a link to this letter on the Division 37 website: <http://www.apa.org/divisions/div37/>. We highly encourage our members, especially students and early career professionals, to take advantage of these new membership benefits!

Please feel free to contact your student or early career representatives with any questions or comments.

Sincerely,
