

The American Psychological Association Presents the Psychology Department Program

The American Psychological Association (APA) is pleased to announce a program for universities and colleges—the Psychology Department Program. This program offers faculty and students valuable information and useful resources to enhance teaching and learning.

Your Department Will Receive These Publications

- Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association (6th edition, paperback)—This thoroughly updated essential resource provides complete guidance on the rules of style that are critical for clear communication in the social and behavioral sciences.
- Finding Jobs With a Psychology Bachelor's Degree: Expert Advice for Launching Your Career—For the thousands of psychology majors facing a difficult job market, this book offers a realistic view of career options with practical advice on how to prepare for them. Professionals describe what they do and how their psychology bachelor's degree helped pave the way.
- Graduate Study in Psychology: 2010—This annual publication pulls together a vast array of information about graduate programs in psychology and provides for easy comparison of their application requirements and other essential details.

Your Department Will Receive Resources to Help With Recruiting, Advising, and Retaining Students

- Guidelines for the Undergraduate Major in Psychology—This document captures a set of optimal expectations of performance for psychology students at the completion of the baccalaureate degree. It outlines 10 goals along with learning outcomes that represent reasonable departmental expectations for the psychology major.
- Careers in Psychology—This informational video and accompanying guide provide information about the many careers open to psychologists.
- Student Affiliations—Free student affiliate memberships will be provided to three of your students.
- Listing of participating programs—A link to your department will be included on the APA Web site promoting your participation in this program.
- Psychology Club Certificate—APA will provide a certificate of recognition for your psychology club.
- PDP-NEWS—APA will sponsor a new Listserv for psychology departments and programs to share news and announcements for faculty and students.

You Will Also Receive These Annual Subscriptions

- Monitor on Psychology—This official publication of the APA provides information about the newest trends in all areas of psychology.
- gradPSYCH—The magazine for graduate students in psychology highlights cutting-edge information on innovative psychology careers, financial information, training and supervision, graduate student lifestyle issues, and emerging trends in psychology.
- Psychology Teacher Network—This newsletter offers general information, events information, and suggestions for teaching in psychology.
- The Educator—This newsletter reports on trends and issues in education in psychology and psychology in education.

APA can help advance the discipline of psychology by partnering with and supporting academic psychology departments. To join now, complete the form included in this brochure.
