

Society for Family Psychology

Division 43

Division 43 is the Division of Family Psychology in the American Psychological Association. Mission: to integrate the understanding of individuals, couples, families and their wider, systemic contexts. The Division of Family Psychology seeks to promote human welfare through the development, dissemination, and application of knowledge about the dynamics, structure and functioning of families.

Objectives:

- to advance the contributions of psychology as a science and as a profession to understanding and intervening with diverse couples, families, children, and other systems;
- to promote the education of psychologists in matters of family psychology including the appropriate roles of psychologists in the field of family psychology;
- to inform the psychological community, mental and physical health communities, third party payers, health management organizations, other appropriate institutions, and the general public, about current research, educational and service activities and the training of family psychologists as clinicians, educators, supervisors, consultants and researchers.
