

AMERICAN PSYCHOLOGICAL ASSOCIATION

Advanced Training Institutes for Summer 2012

The American Psychological Association will sponsor four Advanced Training Institutes (ATIs) in the summer of 2012. These intensive training programs are hosted at major research institutions across the country. ATIs expose advanced graduate students, post-doctoral fellows, new and established faculty, and other researchers to state-of-the-art research methods and emerging technologies.

Structural Equation Modeling in Longitudinal Research

University of California, Davis • May 29 - June 2, 2012 • Application Deadline: March 20, 2012

Exploratory Data Mining in Behavioral Research

University of California, Davis • June 4 - 8, 2012 • Application Deadline: March 20, 2012

Research Methods with Diverse Racial & Ethnic Groups

Michigan State University • June 11 - 15, 2012 • Application Deadline: March 27, 2012

Nonlinear Methods for Psychological Science

University of Cincinnati • June 18 - 22, 2012 • Application Deadline: March 27, 2012

For more information about these programs, consult the Advanced Training Institutes website:

www.apa.org/science/resources/ati