

Psychologists Can Help People Be Healthier

Psychologists have learned a lot about why some people smoke or eat too much or don't exercise. And they have developed programs to help people change their destructive behaviors. If you're interested in helping people live healthier, consider a career in psychology.

Psychology — It's More Than You Think! For information, go to www.apa.org