

ESSENTIAL SCIENCE CONVERSATIONS
What Do Reporters Look for in Covering Science?
September 21, 2022
Related Resources

APA Media Referral Service

APA fields hundreds of queries a year from reporters and maintains a database of experts to respond to those queries. APA encourages applicants. Learn more at www.apa.org/news/press/referrals

APA Handbook on Working with the Media

APA offers an online resource for scientists to accurately represent latest research findings, and areas of expertise to the public.
www.apa.org/pubs/authors/working-with-media

Make Your Science Make Sense Training

APA partners with the Alan Alda Center for Communicating Science to offer online trainings. APA members can enjoy discounted rates. Learn more at apa.org/alan-alda-training/

APA's Science Spotlight

Subscribe to Science Spotlight, your source for the most relevant news and information for psychological scientists, by psychological scientists:
www.apa.org/science/science-spotlight

APA Editor's Choice Newsletter

Keep up with top research findings in psychological science by subscribing to the Editor's Choice newsletter at www.apa.org/news/editors-choice/