ACCORDIONLY

Accordionly

by Michael Genhart  illustrated by Priscilla Burris

The accordion is a funny-looking instrument.
Is it a little piano?
Some kind of harmonica?

My abuelo plays the accordion in a mariachi band.

When they play ranchera music,
he hoots and hollers louder than the rest.

And whenever we visit, my abuela
makes tamales and arroz.

It's a fiesta every time he sings.

When they play, he belts out a yodel that makes the windows shake.

My opa plays the accordion in a polka band.

And whenever we visit, my oma's lebkuchen and hot chocolate make us feel right at home.

He's the only person we know who yodels.
