

Boss No More

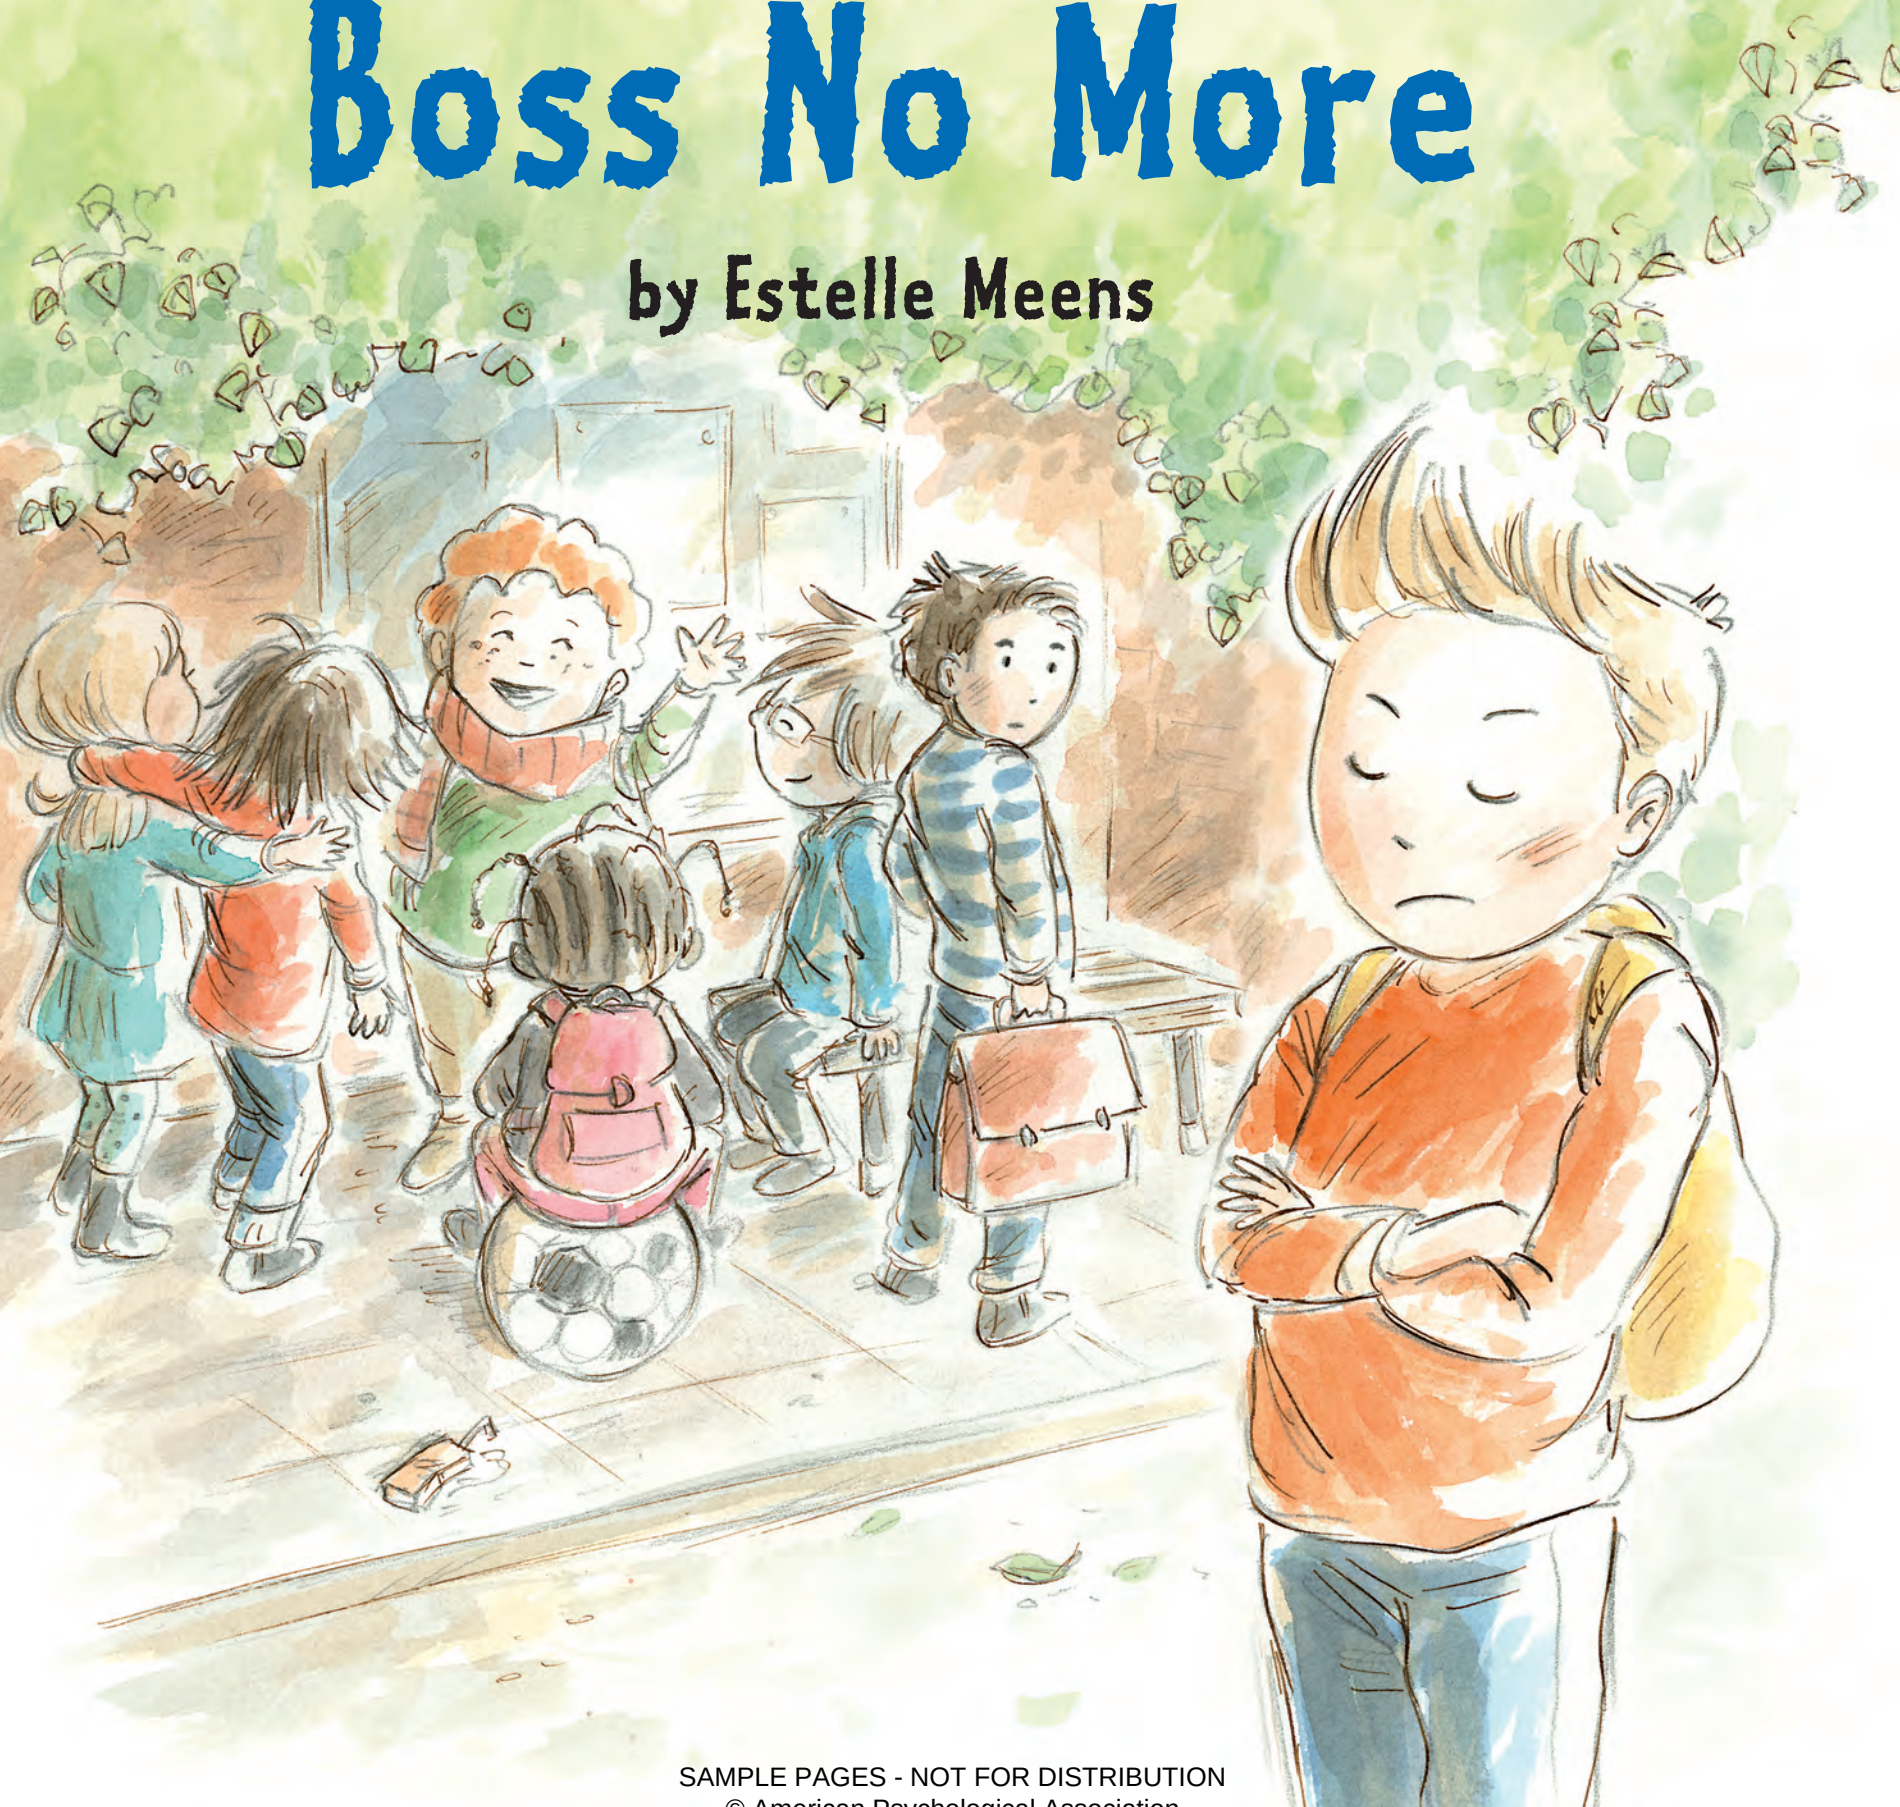

by Estelle Meens

SAMPLE PAGES - NOT FOR DISTRIBUTION
© American Psychological Association

Boss No More

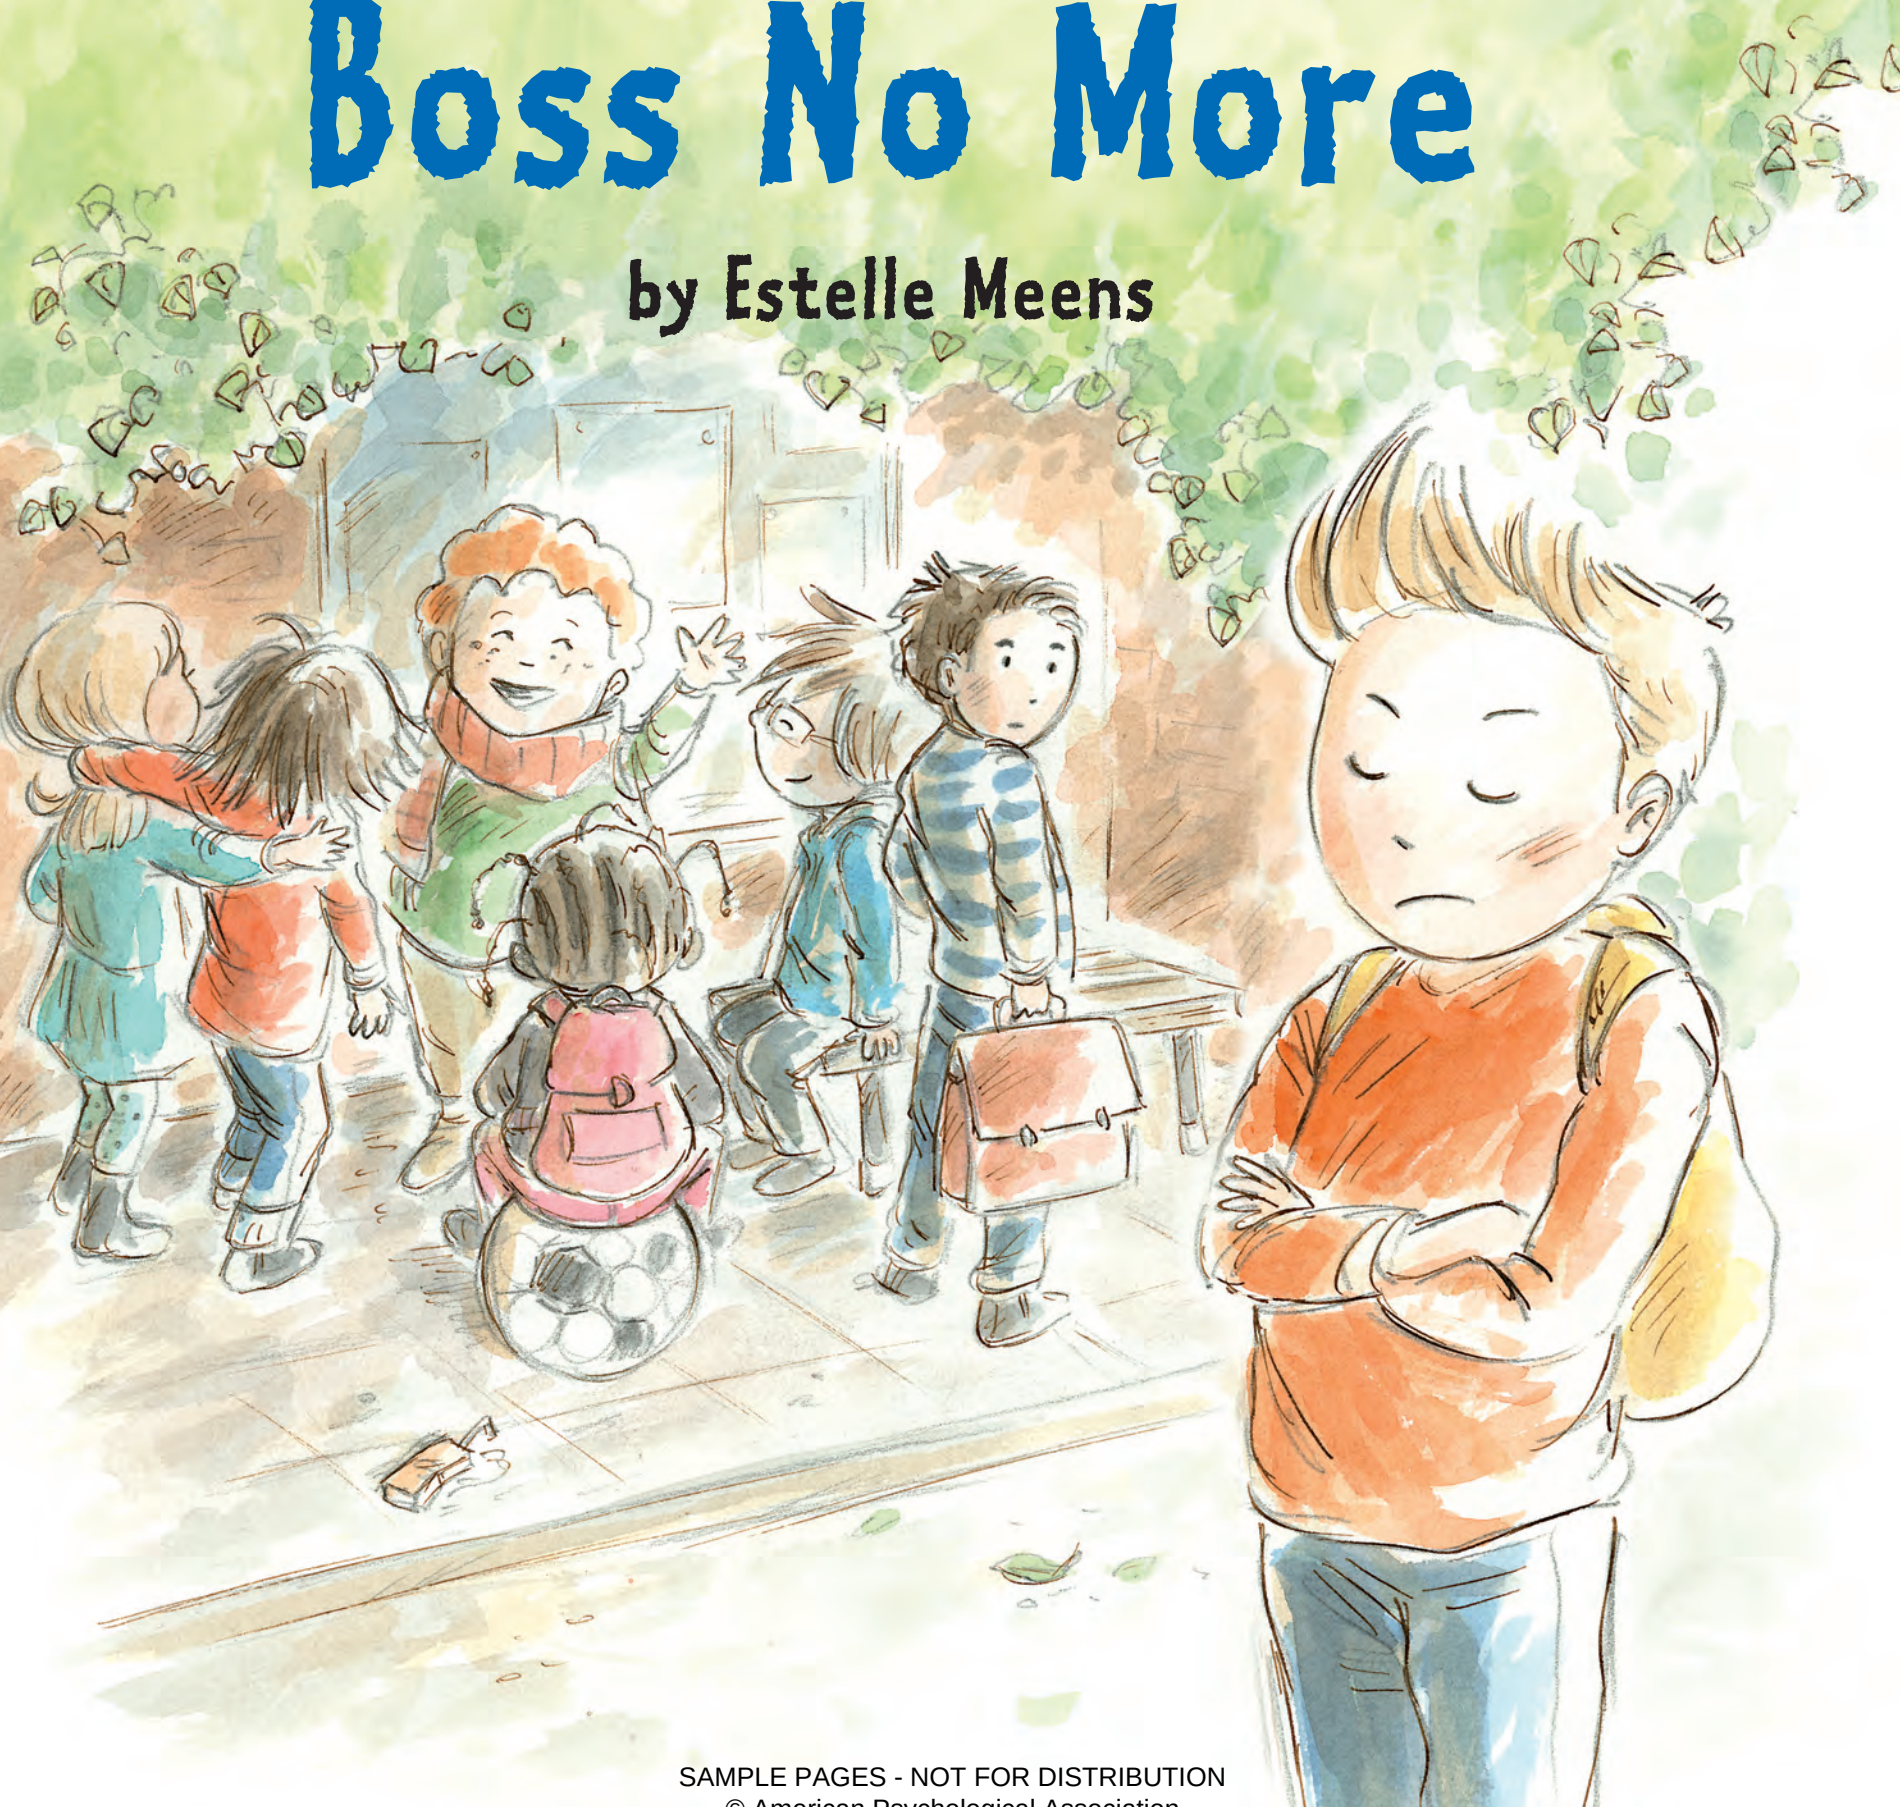

by Estelle Meens

SAMPLE PAGES - NOT FOR DISTRIBUTION
© American Psychological Association

Boss No More

by Estelle Meens

SAMPLE PAGES - NOT FOR DISTRIBUTION
© American Psychological Association

“Did you see the new kid, Timothy?”

“He looks nice.
But why is he all by himself?”

“Maybe because he is huge and has red hair.
Look, here he is.”

“Ha ha ha.”

“That’s not nice, Lucas.”

Gooooooooal!

“Yeah! Nina! You’re awesome. We won!”

“Yeah, yeah. Whatever.... She got lucky, that’s all.”

“Want to play another match?”

“Nope. We’ve had enough soccer today, Nina.
We’re playing with MY marbles now.”

Boss No More

Children's / Friends
Ages 4–8

What happens when one kid thinks he can always choose the game played on the playground?

Who gets to be “it” in tag?

Who can play and who cannot?

Who is the BOSS?

Lucas tries to be that kid, but his friends have had enough!

A Note to Parents and Caregivers by Tammy L. Hughes, PhD, explains how children learn to solve problems and deal with social conflicts, and suggests ways for parents to help guide their children through the rough spots of normal childhood development.

Magination Press

Published by the American Psychological Association
www.apa.org/pubs/magination

