

Maybe Days

A BOOK FOR CHILDREN IN FOSTER CARE

SAMPLE PAGES - NOT FOR DISTRIBUTION
© American Psychological Association

by Jennifer Wilgocki and Marcia Kahn Wright
illustrated by Alissa Imre Geis

All kids need a grown-up to take care of them.

But sometimes, for different reasons,
kids can't live with their mom and dad...or just with their mom...or just with their dad. So sometimes kids need to live somewhere else.

That's what this book is about.

Some kids live in a foster home, where grown-ups called foster parents take care of them.

Living in a foster home is usually not the kid's idea.

It is also not the kid's fault.

It's not because the kid is bad or silly or stupid or goofy.

It's because for different reasons kids sometimes cannot live with their parents.

Sometimes kids cannot live with their parents because their parents hurt them.

Sometimes kids cannot live with their parents because a parent dies.

Sometimes kids cannot live with their parents because their parents have to be in jail.

Sometimes kids cannot live with their parents because their parents just can't take good enough care of them.